Our COVID-19 Response

Benin

While respecting social distancing and other health precautions, The Hunger Project remains dedicated to the health and safety of our partners.

The Hunger Project is working with our partner communities to install hand-washing stations in every Her Choice school, as well as throughout each village, to help prevent the spread of COVID-19. THP is also facilitating broader conversations filled with information on measures our partner communities can implement to prevent the spread of COVID-19.

While the absence of non-essential meetings has changed the landscape of many THP programs, we are actively collaborating with community animators to support them where we can.

THP communities are already using nearly 1,200 Tippy Tap hand-washing stations across Benin.

Our COVID-19 Response

Bangladesh

While respecting social distancing and other health precautions, The Hunger Project remains dedicated to the health and safety of our partners.

The Hunger Project-Bangladesh’s Country Director Badiul Alam Majumdar, is spearheading advocacy for government action against the spread of COVID-19 as well as curating an informational campaign online.

While the absence of non-essential meetings has changed the landscape of many THP programs, our partner communities are finding ways to support each other’s health and maintain communication.

THP community members are taking advantage of their community networks to set up sanitation areas, produce face masks, and spread key information on COVID-19.
